“Warrior” Soldiers re-enlist aboard Historic Battleship at Pearl Harbor

Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines raise their right hands as they recite the oath of enlistment during a multi-service re-enlistment ceremony aboard the main deck of the historic EX-USS Missouri while traveling to Ford Island’s “Battleship Row,” Jan. 7. Following the ceremony, all members aboard the “Mighty Mo” were invited to man the rails as the ship nestled comfortably back home at the USS Missouri Memorial, greeted by friends, family and well-wishers awaiting the battleship’s return at the dock. (U.S. Army photo by Master Sgt. Michael Wetzel, 25th Infantry Division Public Affairs Office.)

WHAT’S IN IT FOR ME?

Many incentives offered, both tangible and intangible, can entice a Soldier to re-enlist. Soldiers stay for many different reasons; whether that is to advance their career, training, get a better education, the passion for the job, patriotism, camaraderie or job security. Others re-enlist because of the incentives that most of us take for granted: 30 days leave, 4-day and 3-day passes, yearly pay raises, free legal advice, tuition assistance, medical and dental plan, clothing allowance, fitness facilities, time off to take care of personal business, travel, allowances for housing and food, and most importantly a solid retirement plan for the remainder of your life.

Much similar to any type of organization, Soldiers in the Army stay because of the combination of tangible and intangible benefits. Many have taken the step of raising their right hands and taking the oath. Thank you for making that critical decision. Some of you may still be mulling over whether to re-enlist and continue your service.

Before you make the final decision of separating from the Army, re-evaluate your situation to insure that you have a solid plan. Think of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd order effects of your decision. As you evaluate the pros and cons of civilian life, re-consider the Army and RE-ENLIST!
